♦♦ THE BRADBURY ♦♦

At the heart of the Gothic Bar sits "The Bradbury," an impressive Iron Nickel meteorite named after Ray Bradbury, the science fiction and fantasy visionary who wrote such legendary stories as The Martian Chronicles, Fahrenheit 451 and I Sing the Body Electric. In the booth areas of the Gothic Bar, Bradbury attended meetings of the Los Angeles Science Fiction Society in the late 1930's along with luminaries Ray Harryhausen, Forrest J. Ackerman, Robert Heinlein, L. Ron Hubbard, Leigh Brackett and many other iconic founders of modern Science Fiction.

The meteorite is part of the Campo del Cielo (Field of Heaven) fall - fragments of the largest recorded meteorite to impact Earth approximately 4,500 years ago in what is now Argentina. It's comprised primarily of Iron and Nickel, and is estimated to be nearly 4.7 Billion years old - a primordial relic from the origins of our Solar System.

Feel free to touch The Bradbury and tap your drink gently on its side in celebration of the blending of science, fiction and the remarkable building blocks of nature!
